A gentleman who delights in the game of whist and believes in playing it quietly and making it somewhat a matter of business, recently, while visiting a sister one evening, took a hand in a family game, and had for his partner the said sister, who is his very opposite in temperament and enjoys cracking jokes and making pert speeches. As the game wore on the brother became irascible and almost exasperated by her continued laughter and light talk. He called out emphatically at last, "Come pay attention to the game, don't laugh so much;" and she answered, "What you want is a Ripans Tabule; take one and you can laugh, too." She thereupon took out of her pocket a vial of the Tabules and gave him one, which he swallowed as a sort of penance for his petuliance. A few weeks after a friend who had been present at the card party, meeting him on the street, asked, after the usual greeting, "How about the Ripans?" His answer was, "First rate," and then he said seriously, "That Tabule was swallowed as a joke, perhaps, but Ripans Tabules and I have become friends. I perceived a benefit from that one, so I bought some and have continued their use. They have garnished me from top to bottom. I guess I don't talk and laugh as much as Amelia does, but I laugh more than I used and feel in better spirits all the time."

A new style packet containing the arrows rathers in a paper carron (without glass) is now for sale at some drug stores.—FOR FINE CARTS. This low-priced sort is intended for the poor and the economical. One dozen of the five-cent carrons (188 tabules) can be had by mail by sending forty-eight cents to the literam.
